

Overall, the data frame likes like a tree structure that comes from server which received data, then pass to the platform which owns several subsections (branch), then each subsection has its own subsections (leaf). Then it will proceed to device_id and etc. like a final conclusion for the basic information.